

Kyle's Korner

A couple of days ago, Marissa and I went shopping for her a new pillow for our bed. We chose a store and, while we were there, we picked up something else she had been wanting for awhile. While picking out the things she needed, I looked around and found several other things we “needed”: specifically some really nice kitchenware. When showing these items to her, I told her why we “needed” them. She disagreed. Apparently, we didn’t “need” those things after all. (I knew we didn’t need them, by the way. :) I was just kidding.)

Sometimes we confuse wants and needs. The things we “need” - and just can’t seem to live without them - may only be wants in reality.

Over the last year or so, I have constantly reminded myself that “this world is not my home.” I know that God is preparing something much greater for all of His faithful children, and, in that light, I realize that none of the things we have in our possession on Earth are really necessities. Oh, we need a house to live in and clothes on our back and food to eat, but none of these really compare to what we REALLY need... GOD!

You need God. You need to be a Christian. You need to obey the gospel so that what God is preparing can one day be yours, as well. You need salvation and, in essence, Christ’s sacrifice for us on the cross. Those are the things we truly need.

When it comes to God and His Word, I hope we don’t confuse the things we want with the things we need.

“But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you.”

(Matthew 6:33, NKJV)
